PREFACE.

IN offering the MERCHANTS AND MANUFACTURERS ILLUSTRATED GUIDE TO CHICAGO, the publishers would call especial attention to the varied and valuable information it contains, and its fine arrangement and artistic appearance. Never before in the history of this or any other city has there been provided a volume so replete with data and directions for which there is daily use, prepared in form and style such as will give it place in the drawing-room, library and counting-house. It is illustrated with engravings, printed in tint, of the leading Mercantile Houses, Manufacturing Establishments, and Public Institutions of Chicago. Many of these engravings are new and made expressly for this work.

This book will not only be of interest to residents of Chicago but to the people of the Great West, who take a lively interest in their metropolitan city.

CHICAGO.

THE HISTORY OF CHICAGO has been so often told, and its age is counted with so few years, that all are familiar with it. In telling the story writers cannot go back of the present century,—hardly previous to this generation,—and yet in this brief time it has accomplished what thousands of years have not been able to do for many pretentious places, and many generations have not been able to achieve for any other city on the Western Continent.

While the entire population of the county in which Chicago is situated was only 10,201 in 1840, the city alone will number in 1880 more than 500,000 souls. The growth of commerce and business for the same time has not been second to the increase in population. In 1850 the manufacturers and wholesale dealers did a business of $20,000,000. This has increased to $764,000,000 in 1879. It must be borne in mind that during the last ten years of the history of Chicago it passed through an ordeal of fire second to none in modern times. Between the sunset of Sunday, October 9, 1871, and the same hour of the succeeding day, there were destroyed in the very heart of the city 17,450 buildings, which, with the property contained in them, represented more than two hundred millions dollars; and yet in only eight years after, the city is rebuilt in greater magnificence and splendor, and has almost doubled in population.

The city is supplied with water by two immense pumping works, one on the lake shore at the foot of Chicago avenue, with a pumping capacity of 76,000,000 gallons per day, and the other about five miles away on the corner of Blue Island avenue and Twenty-second street, with a capacity of 30,000,000 gallons, both drawing their supply from the same source, the crib, situated over two miles out in Lake Michigan.

The fire department of Chicago consists of 350 officers and men; 154 horses, 33 engines, 29 hose carts, 8 hook and ladder wagons, carrying 1,793 feet of ladders. The valuation of the property used by the department is estimated as follows: real estate, $203,550; buildings, $274,800; apparatus, $479,300.97, a total of $957,655.97.

There are nearly two thousand acres of ground in and about Chicago devoted to parks, which have been secured at a cost of over $5,000,000, and when completed, by improving, will be the finest and most elaborate park economy on the continent.

The shipping accommodations of Chicago are unequaled by any city not on tide water. The Chicago river provides more than forty miles of dockage, and Lake Michigan furnishes an outlet to the seaports of the world by way of the great chain of lakes and the St. Lawrence river, while the great railroads, radiating from all directions, put the city in communication with the world by land. By the statistics of the Post-office department, Chicago is only second in the amount of post-office business transacted.

All these facts are pointed to with pride by those who admire progress and success, and with envy by those who live in cities which, from their location and want of push, cannot keep pace with the "Greatest City of the West."

GILBERT HUBBARD & CO.

THE foundation of this house was laid in 1834 by George A. Robb, and succeeded in 1849 by Hubbard & Robb, and by the present firm in 1856. The rapid increase of business made necessary enlarged facilities, and the present extensive buildings and lofts were erected under the personal supervision of Mr. Geo. B. Carpenter, a member of the firm, and one who thoroughly understood the needs of the business; they are located on the river bank at the corner of Fifth avenue and South Water streets. They employ about fifty hands in the manufacture of sails, tents, awnings, paulins, wagon and horse covers, belting, netting, netting twines, and in fact everything made from heavy cotton goods, also silk flags and banners. In addition to this they carry extensive stocks of manila, sisal and tarred hemp rope, steel and iron wire rope, all sizes and qualities, and twines of every description. They carry the largest stock and are the largest operators in their line west of New York. It is but giving the house of Gilbert Hubbard & Co. their due to state that having been pioneers in their line, they at all times are first to introduce new and improved stocks for any of their departments, and any goods that can be bought in any house of their class anywhere can be found in their store in Chicago; and among the thousands of sailors and ship-owners scattered from Duluth to the St. Lawrence, it would be a miracle to find one that does not know this old and long tried house, and the vessels they have rigged out could be counted by the thousand, as they can equip any craft from anchor to pennant.

TOBEY FURNITURE COMPANY, State and Adams Streets, Manufacturers of Furniture of every description.

NORTHWESTERN HORSE-NAIL CO.

DURING the last twelve years the manufacture of horse-nails has received a remarkable impetus, and the prejudice of blacksmiths having been overcome, horse-nails are now a staple in the markets of the world. The largest institution engaged in their manufacture in the world is the Northwestern Horse Nail Co. of Chicago, whose factory, shown on the opposite page, covers an area of 1200 sq. feet, substantially built of brick, two stories high with basement. Two fine engines supply the power, being 120 and 24 horse power respectively. They employ about 120 men and boys, and have a capacity of about 1,000,000 of horse-nails per annum. This annual product will not meet their orders, and they are proposing to materially enlarge the works. They use the best iron that can be manufactured, and their machines draw the nails hot from the end of a rod by blows on the top and sides precisely as a smith does by hand on an anvil. Mr. A. W. Kingland, the secretary of the Company, is also the manager, and he begins with the principle of making the best nail that could be made, and maintaining uniformity of size, merit and finish, and he never permits any but a first-class nail to leave the shop, and the "Northwestern" brand is a guarantee of excellence.

GAGE BROTHERS & CO.

AMONG the extensive and reliable houses of Chicago is the firm whose name heads this article, and who have for the past twenty-four years and upward catered successfully to the requirements of a diversified and fastidious trade.

Gage Brothers & Co's stock contains a complete variety of Millinery, Notions, Fancy Goods and Dry Goods sundries. Among these specialties we would name Ribbons, Corsets, Velvets, Satins, Bareges, Dress Buttons, Parisenas, Black English Crapes, Ladies' Hats, and Black Dress Silks.

The spacious floors, arranged with scrupulous neatness, are really grand to behold, presenting, as they do, an array of goods seemingly exhaustless.

Interior buyers visiting Chicago will add to their profit by looking through this model emporium and witness the manufacturing of ladies' straw hats, also corsets, theirs being the pioneer corset manufactory of Chicago.

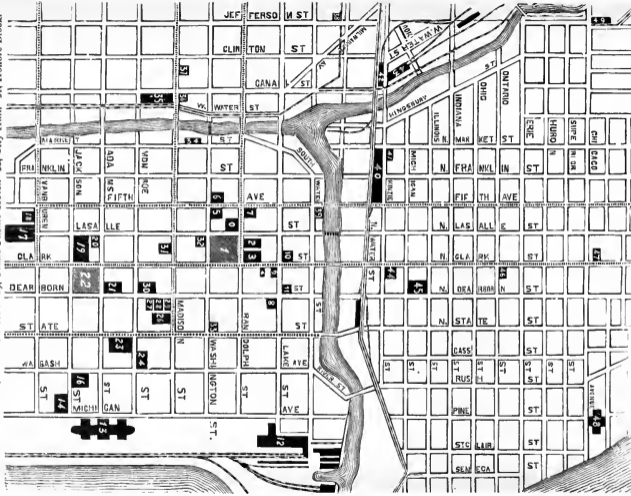

The members of this firm, having devoted many years to catering to the wants of the great West, have acquired a knowledge of what is needed and seem to be appreciated. Dealers selecting their stocks from a firm of this character have the advantage of knowing that they are purchasing goods selected by thoroughly competent men and embracing the latest dictates of fashion, and at prices that fear no competition.

THE SCHUTTLER WAGON.

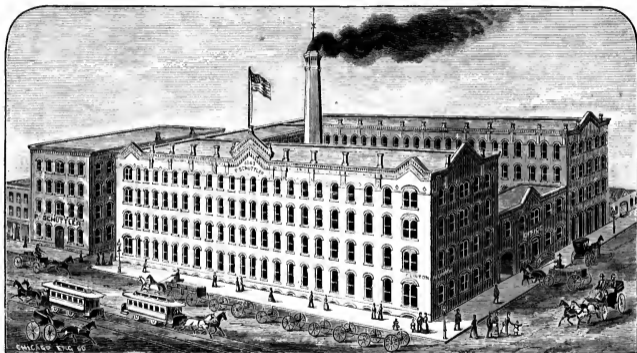

A BRIEF SKETCH OF ITS HISTORY.

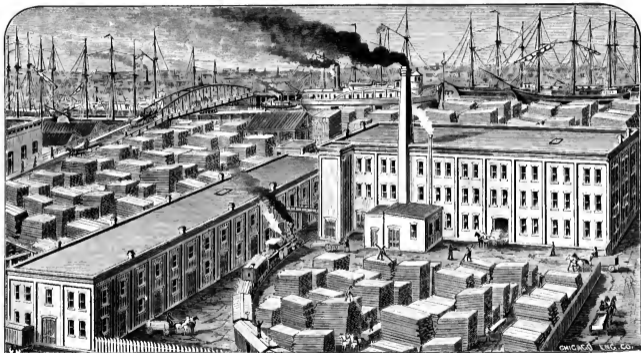

THE SCHUTTLER WAGON was first manufactured by the senior PETER SCHUTTLER, on the corner of Randolph and Franklin Streets, in this city, in 1843, where he continued in business with unprecedented success up to the time of his decease in 1865. The present PETER SCHUTTLER had assisted his father in the management of the factory for several years previously, and hence was well qualified to continue the business without interruption, which he did until 1868, when Mr. CHRISTOPH HOTZ was admitted as a partner, and since that time Messrs. SCHUTTLER & HOTZ have conducted the business as proprietors.

The original factory was consumed by the Great Fire of October 8 and 9, 1871, and as the demand for the "Schuttler" wagon had exceeded its capacity, it was deemed advisable to remove to the corner of Clinton and Monroe Streets, where they had sufficient ground to build a factory, equal (as was then supposed) to the requirements of all future trade. The large and commodious buildings, of which we show an illustration on the following page, were accordingly built, but the constantly increasing demand for its products far exceeded the most sanguine expectations of its projectors, and so they were compelled to erect in addition the new factory shown on page 57, which doubles the capacity for manufacturing wagons since 1871.

WILSON PACKING COMPANY.

THE production and exportation of canned goods has, within the last few years, become an important feature of American commerce. In nothing has the production grown more rapidly than in canned meats; and among those who are engaged in this specialty, THE WILSON PACKING COMPANY, of Chicago, undoubtedly occupies the foremost place. This company was organized in 1874, for the express purpose of utilizing a newly discovered process for the preservation of meats. By this process meats are so preserved in compact and solid form that they can be transported to the ends of the earth if desired; and in any climate under the sun, after being incased for years in the can invented by the Messrs. Wilson, the meat comes forth in a solid state, without a particle of gravy, in a natural and palatable condition, of delicious flavor, cooked and ready to be sliced and eaten.

The company has adapted its methods of preserving to all kinds of meats, including game and poultry, but the specialties have been corned beef, ham and beef tongues, of the latter the company can each year from 250,000 to 300,000.

The works of the company occupy the entire square bounded by Canal, Jackson, Clinton and Adams streets in this city, and the power is furnished by nine large boilers, aggregating about 450 horse power, consuming about fifteen tons of anthracite coal daily. They employ from 800 to 1,500 hands, varying according to season, and have a capacity for handling 1,000 head of cattle per day. Their product amounts to about eight millions of cans of meat, 25,000 barrels of tallow, over 5,000 tierces of lard, and an immense quantity of barreled meats, and their goods are to be found in all parts of the world.

THE WILSON PACKING COMPANY, bounded by Canal, Jackson, Clinton and Adams Sts.

THE HARTFORD FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY,

HARTFORD, CONN.

AMONG the financial landmarks of our country few are more conspicuous than the HARTFORD FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY. This is a representative American institution, backed by a constituency of wealthy stockholders representing more than fifty millions of capital.

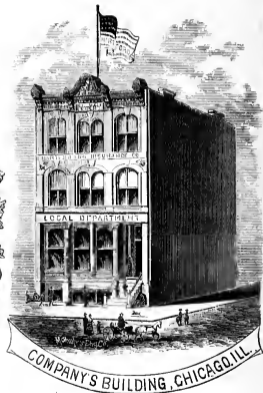

The chartered existence of this institution dates from 1810, but its business career began in 1794, when, as an unchartered association, its first Policies of indemnity were issued. Its agencies may be found in nearly every State and Territory, thus affording to its patrons in each of these widely-separated localities equal facilities, not only for procuring indemnity, but under its far-reaching enterprise, celerity and promptness in disbursing it in case of disaster.

Upward of twenty thousand sufferers by fire have been relieved under its contracts to the extent of more than twenty-three millions of dollars, and not a few business enterprises have thereby been saved from ruin. While hundreds of similar institutions have ingloriously failed or been swept down by great calamities that from time to time have visited the country, its stability has been demonstrated, not only in meeting faithfully the ordinary visitations of disaster incident to a career of nearly three-quarters of a century, but by successfully encountering the great and sweeping conflagrations that have become historic on account of their magnitude,—among which are those of New York, in 1835; Pittsburgh, 1846; St. Louis, 1849; Portland, 1865; Chicago, 1871; Boston, 1872; Virginia City, 1875, and St. Johns, N. B., 1877. In a single one of these this institution was able in the space of four months, without litigation in a single instance or delay, to discharge the claims of its patrons, in cash, to the extent of over nineteen hundred thousand dollars, and to continue its business undisturbed! None of its claimants has ever been asked to accept less than one hundred cents on the dollar of approved claims, and under the management of skilled and practical minds its business is so conducted as to render it superior to any conceivable calamity.

By the record thus established, and its reputation for high commercial honor in all transactions, the claim of the "HARTFORD" to preëminence among the leading institutions of its class has long been conceded by the insuring public.

Its principal offices are in Hartford, Conn.; Chicago, Ill.; and San Francisco, Cal.

J. V. FARWELL & CO'S WHOLESALE DRY GOODS HOUSE, Franklin and Monroe Sts.

JAMES S. KIRK & CO.

THERE is probably no one who will question the statement that JAMES S. KIRK & Co., an engraving of whose works and warerooms is shown on the opposite page, are the largest soap manufacturers in this country, if not in the world. The history of the concern is one of steady but rapid progress, the magnitude of each year's business being greatly in excess of the previous year. The reputation of the different varieties of soap made by them is so high and so thoroughly established for its quality and uniform excellence that it has become standard, and extended their trade through the entire United States and into the British Dominions. The extent and magnitude of this firm may be better understood when it is known that they possess the requisite machinery and capacity for making 3,000,000 pounds of new soap each week and holding 3,000,000 pounds more ready for sale and shipment. The enterprise of the firm is proverbial, as they spare no trouble or expense in promptly securing every improvement by which their business can be facilitated and their customers benefited.

They manufacture all grades of goods from the very finest toilets to the more common qualities, and they are each recognized as being absolutely pure, of real worth and standard excellence.
